

Women in Local Government

Ponder, plan and get practical

"It is not women against men, it is women and men, and not that the world will be a better place if women run it, but that the world will be a better place when women who bring their perspectives share in running it."

Indira Patel 2002

This is a rare opportunity for women members and men who support them to get together for listening, pondering and planning for VLGA's participation in the National Year of Women in Local Government in 2010 and its strategy towards the 2012 elections.

A panel featuring four women Councillors and former Mayors from different regions, perspectives and experiences will reflect, provoke and identify with you what we have to build on and where we can go.

Get yourself to the VLGA Leading Edge Forum on Thursday 3rd September for an evening of information sharing, debate and strategic thinking.

All welcome. Gender equity is work that involves us all.
